Antaros Medical, founded in 2014, is supporting pharmaceutical companies cross the globe with improved, evidence-based decision making for clinical drug development through innovative imaging methodologies and study designs.

"We are very proud of being awarded this prize. We have, in a short time with fantastic employees, established a sustainable model of continuous reinvestment in research into innovative methods that can enable the right decisions in the development of new medicines" says Johannes Hulthe, CEO Antaros.

The award ceremony was held on January 30th in conjunction with the meeting of Börssällskapet at the Elite Park Avenue Hotel. Two of the four Antaros Medical founders, Johannes Hulthe, CEO, and Lars Johansson, CSO, received the award from Lennart Johansson, Director, Trade & Industry Group and Ann-Sofie Hermansson, Chair of the Gothenburg City Executive Committee. The company was awarded the prize based on the following reasons:

“...By daring to go their own way and believe in their product, Antaros Medical has created a unique position in its industry. This, together with strong employee perspective, makes Antaros Medical to a worthy winner of Gothenburg Company Prize in 2016.”
